My name is Ayush Jain. I live in Bhayander, Mumbai. I am determined towards the work or hobbies I choose for myself. I am confident, enthusiastic and fun loving. My family includes my parents and my elder brother. My family supports me emotionally as well as mentally everytime. My friends include a really small list of close and meaningful people. I don't easily make friends. Every good friend of mine is a diamond because I choose people who are better than me.

As a student I have had various achievements in my resume like having many programming certifications and completing internships which will help a lot in my budding career. In my personal life I think my biggest achievement has ~~to~~ been to accept the person I am. Earlier, I used to always wait for acceptance of people. But as you grow up and mature, you realise that the only acceptance that matters is yours. My biggest failure is that I did not remove enough people from my life at right time.

→ I decide what is right and what is wrong based on my moral values, common sense, general knowledge and my past experiences. Firstly, I try to predict the repercussions of the actions taken and then decide whether it will be ~~as~~ right or wrong.

→ The major ~~8~~ aspirations of my life includes:

(1) Getting a job: In a field with most competition, getting a job tops the priority of aspirations every single time.

(2) Money: The most important thing in the world is my 2nd aspiration.

(3) Maintaining good physique: I think a man is perfect when he is healthy.

(4) Networking: I might be introvert but once I get along, I am fun to be with.

(5) Innovator: I want to innovate tools and technologies that can be used by people.

Life is tough and unfair. Nothing in the world is permanent and we should not have any regrets about our decisions in life. Keeping everyone happy and not hurting anyone would be a meaningful and fulfilling life for me.
